

WE ARE HIRING

Crop Production Manager JD Agro Cocora

COMPANY PROFILE

JD Agro Cocora is a modern agricultural production with great ambitions and sustainability in focus.

The total agricultural area for the entire company comprises 17,000 ha divided into two geographical areas in South-Eastern Romania.

Each area is well-arranged and developed around newly built farms that are strategically well-located for production and shipping in Constanta on the Black Sea.

Read more about JD Agro Cocora.
Visit our website agrococora.ro

POSITION OVERVIEW

The position we offer is Crop Production Manager at the main farm Cocora, where 11,500 ha of crop production is currently cultivated. Wheat, maize, sunflowers, soya, and rapeseed are mainly grown.

Our agricultural practice is done according to the Conservation Agriculture method, with a focus on soil moisture, soil health, minimum disturbance, and adaptation to local climatic conditions.

The Crop Production Manager reports directly to the CEO, and forms part of the management team for crop production together with 2 other Danish managers.

Together, the strategy in crop production is determined. Production plans and management decisions are continuously discussed in the crop production management team. In everyday life, it is the Crop Production manager who independently manages and plans the crop production department together with 2 team leaders and acting co-team leaders.

Planning and servicing and maintenance of the machine park is handled by the service manager.

The organizational structure, the management basis, the system, and the ongoing development of the management team provide the Crop Production Manager with the optimal conditions for good leadership.

OPERATIONAL STRUCTURE:

- Monthly follow-up on the financial results, stock, and budgets.
- Weekly management team meetings for coordination and follow-up on production plans.
- Morning meetings with the team leaders.
- 14 days of meetings with a professional focus.
- Part of the professional team together with the CEO and the other crop production managers.

As Crop Production Manager, you are the pivot for production on the main farm. This requires you to have a good overview and the ability to make timely decisions.

CORE RESPONSIBILITIES:

- Management of crop production in practice on 11,500 ha.
- Execution of field, fertilizer and spraying plans.
- Development and training of organization in crop production.
- Budget and cost management for crop production.

INCENTIVES AND BENEFITS:

- A developing and long-term position in a modern company in constant development.
- An educational job, with a focus on crop production and organization.
- Salary package according to qualifications, including health insurance and paid trips home 6 times a year.
- Private residence as desired, either in Bucharest or another larger city, as well as an apartment with guest rooms on the farm.
- Company car and necessary IT equipment.
- Ongoing sparring with a Danish boss and colleagues, as well as associated management consultant.
- Participation in international ERFA group, Danish Farmers Abroad.

THE RIGHT LEADERSHIP PROFILE:

- It is expected that you will be a highly motivated manager with a great passion for crop production.
- You have management experience from a large crop production farm, preferably from abroad.
- You are well-educated, e.g., agricultural economist or equivalent, and privately cleared to travel to Eastern EU.
- You are fluent in spoken and written English.
- Your professional and personal ballast in combination with excellent IT skills, an open mindset and willingness to continue development are the success criteria for the position of Crop Production Manager at JD AGRO COCORA.

APPLICATION

Further information about the position can be obtained by contacting Hans D. Poulsen at +40 730 017 340.

Applications with relevant supporting documents should be sent to lh@agrococora.ro

All inquiries are treated as confidential.

Scan the QR code to access our digital business card online.